President's Line August 2023

Hello from Idaho! We have been enjoying the lakes in Idaho with great success and we also were blessed to get another elk this year. Hope you're enjoying your summer! Though the lakes are full of water, they have been a challenge to have our usual successful catching. The Hex hatch was fun for some; but a challenge for most!

Butt Lake Hex hatch fished better than had been expected. Few came off that lake without a catch of some sort. Many caught the Sacramento perch at least a few times there and enjoyed the enormous size and fight! I heard people catching enormous browns and rainbows!!

For those interested in fishing in Mexico, we have two opportunities. Due to illness, two openings for the September 2 - 9, 2023, Dorado fishing in La Ventana, Mexico have opened. Also, two or three openings at Lake Picachos for trophy bass during January 12 - 17, 2024 have become available. Please call Pat Sleeper ASAP with any questions (530.228.9197; psleeper@sbcglobal.net).

Please check out our speakers and fish outs in our newsletter and on the website.

We also have some fishing items for sale that you may be interested in from Mark Antaramian. If you have any fly fishing equipment for sale, let John Cowan know (530.966.0076; jcowan58@yahoo.com). We are adding a "Garage Sale" column that may be of interest to some needing to off-load gear or who wish to acquire gear at a good price.

Project Healing Waters Fly Fishing is continuing to have their 1st and 3rd Wed meetings at The Rod and Gun club at 9am.

I look forward to seeing you at our next General Meeting Wednesday, October 11th, 2023 at the Lakeside Pavilion (2565 California Park Drive, Chico). Fly Tying is at 6:30pm and Hogan Brown will speak at 7:30pm. We also have elections at that meeting. If you are interested in being on the CAF Board of Directors, let me or John Cowan know. For any existing board members interested in running for an office, again, let me or John Cowan know. Please give me a call if you have any questions.

On the Road Again: Spring Valley Lake, August 2023 By Don and Pat Sleeper

Fishing is always fishing and never knowing how you'll do; what you'll catch or how you'll be treated by the weather. Don and I arrived July 27th in Troy, Idaho for fishing and elk hunting. On Monday, July 31st, Don and I and our cousins Chris and Krystal, tried fishing Spring Valley Lake with fair success. I used a Lincoln Gray, T.S. Bugger on an intermediate line, using a 7wt rod. My catch was 9 bluegills (three different strains) and 12 rainbow trout. Don did about the same using an intermediate line with a Hex nymph.

Though the lake had a few thunderheads rolling in and out with some strong to medium wind gusts, we fished the lake for about 2 hours and felt good about our catches.

The lake had about three other float-tubers on it as well as a couple other boats fishing for bass that appeared to be having a fair success using the "dark side" ...

We went back about a week later after Don harvested his elk and he did extremely well the second time fishing... Amazing because this is a small lake, and the shore was full of families with their children swimming and playing enjoying the cool 71-degree water. Nice that they could enjoy swimming and we could enjoy catching at the same time!! And not 100 yards from each other.

The temperature outside was in the low 80's and fish were jumping at the few dragon flies flying by at times. My catch this time was 4 bluegill and 26 rainbow which felt extremely well for 2 hours or so on the water this time.

We just came back from our third time fishing Spring Valley today and it fished about the same: though I did catch a few more trout, my first bass and saw the water had warmed up to 73-degrees. The eagles were soaring over checking out the jumping trout and bass. Fun, beautiful, productive trip!!

Iron Canyon, Big Chico Creek Update

By Holly Swan, Cal Trout

Design is on schedule with 30% design to be completed by early next year. Design technology such as utilizing 3D scanners helps the design team create a 3D model of the project site (with preciseness down to a few millimeters!). This allows them to virtually “walk” the project site without making a physical site visit. It’s kind of like playing a video game that takes place in Iron Canyon. Very cool technology.

Outreach events will start in September with tabling events at various Farmer’s Markets around town. Stop on by and say hi!

Upcoming October Elections

By John Cowan

Chico Area Flyfishers annual elections for board members and officers takes place at the General Meeting each October. This article isn’t the most interesting or entertaining, but it is important by informing the reader of the roll of the board member. After reading this article, if you are interested in being nominated for an elected position, please let Pat Sleeper (530.228.9197; psleeper@sbcglobal.net) or John Cowan (530.966.0076; jcowan58@yahoo.com) know as soon as possible. Please include a very brief statement on why you are motivated to run for the position. The officer positions are typically nominated from the existing Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors meets on the first Monday of each month, as called by the CAF President. There are four elected positions, and several appointed positions. You can see who is currently serving near the end of the newsletter. Our club is active in several areas: Conservation activities with Cal Trout, Almanor Fishing Association, and Trout Unlimited; Project Healing Waters Fly Fishing working with local disabled veterans; Youth education with Salmon in the Classroom, The Oroville Salmon Festival, Hooked on Fishing (when it returns), and scholarships; Fly fishing skills development with casting practice, and fly tying; and fish-outs, to name a few. To do this well, we need help. Our annual fundraising dinner is lots of fun, but a lot of work goes into it.

Every organization evolves and changes in time. Consider running as a board member to influence how you would like to see our club progress.

Garage Sale

If anyone has any fly fishing gear they want to sell, let John Cowan (530.966.0076; jcowan58@yahoo.com) know. Provide as much info as you can about the gear to be sold, a picture(s), contact info, and a fair asking price. If an item is sold, please let John know so that the item is taken off the list for the next newsletter issue.

Summer Fishing Reports

Various Authors

If any of you have any good fishing experiences, text or email John Cowan (530.966.0076; jcowan58@yahoo.com) or Pat Sleeper (530.228.9197; psleeper@sbcglobal.net). We had great feedback from last month's Summer Fishing Reports and would love to keep that going with your help!

Thursday, July 13, 2023: Butt Reservoir

By Walt Mazen

Evening fishing report. Hot damn! Again, to Butt Lake, mile 8 marker. Across the lake, three other people from Chico were there. It was slow and after 8:00pm a few bugs popped and the rise started! I got an 18" rainbow on a Mike Mercer Rag Hex nymph. So far, I got most fish on that. Then I got a 24" brown, 6-7 lbs. He didn't hold still for a foto. Switched to a dry fly and got two smaller rainbows, maybe 16". Oh yeah, a sucker, too. Mike got a couple of smallies and a trout. The other guys got a few. Mike capsized Laurie's canoe, although he blames the dog. He saved his rods!! So it's a small slice of heaven. I feel like the number of Hex bugs is down. Still good to go some more! Caio, Walt.

Saturday, July 29, 2023: New Spicer Meadow Reservoir

By John Cowan

This is the third year that I have come to this reservoir with my non-fishing friends. In order to not appear to be a complete a-hole, I didn't fish as much as I would have liked so I could enjoy the time with my friends. While fishing with Pat Hallin, I found out this was the place where he had his first experience with fly fishing. True to my greenhorn form, I had three hits, but nothing landed. However, the serene feeling of kicking around in my float tube in the morning made the whole experience worth it! It is a beautiful lake. Great campground (no hookups; no reservations) and boat launch. I'll be back. While I may not catch any fish, I repeatedly come back with more skills than I had before, enticing me to think that my chances of catching fish in the future are favorable!

Sunday, July 30, 2023: Silver Lake area and Echo Lake

by Frank Spiteri

The fish are moving deep. Around Silver Lake we landed small ones. At Echo Lake we fished deep and landed ten.

Saturday, July 30, 2023: Lake Almanor

by Pete Wiik

Making my last drift toward the takeout on my last night at Geritol Cove. With four brought to the net, I marked lots of fish. Hooked three more, landed two. I stayed out until 9:30pm and landed two more! I had to make the most of my last Hex night.

Wednesday, August 2, 2023: Grasshopper Creek and Upper Big Hole River, Montana

John Cowan and Mark Hardesty

Mark Hardesty took me to his old stomping grounds where he used to fish with his dad for over four decades. He always would bring large bags of almonds to give to the farming families that he has known for so long. We waded through high grass to get to the low water of Grasshopper Creek. Neither one of us brought bug spray... I got a hit and that was it.

We drove over to the Dooly Ranch to see old man John Dooly who never seemed to care whether we fished on his property or not. He did like the almonds, though. Mark, long familiar with small streams, caught five or six. Me, still learning my craft, managed to only leave three or four flies in the willows.

Thursday, August 3, 2023: Beaverhead River, Dillon, Montana by John Cowan and Mark Hardesty

Mark and his dad, Eugene, had been coming to Dillon, Montana for years and years. Eugene managed to fish 30 consecutive years with his favorite guide, Monty Hankenson (406.925.1945). Mark and I fished with Monty and his friend, G.O. who also has a jerky business. On this day, I drew the straw to fish with Monty, and Mark with G.O. We used olive streamers the entire day. I caught five and Mark landed two. I only lost about six of Monty's flies. On one willow snag, Monty rowed over to have me retrieve the fly. I got the fly, along with someone's lost PMD!

Friday, August 4, 2023: Clark Canyon Reservoir by John Cowan and Mark Hardesty

Apparently, this is late in the season for Clark Canyon Reservoir. Today, I fished with G.O. and Mark with Monty. There is a channel where the fish hang out, and it is a trick to find it. Monty found the channel and Mark landed five fabulous fish. G.O. didn't find it and I got skunked. In fact, it was one of those days where I just felt that my indicator was never going to dunk under the water! Still, great fun!

Thursday, August 10, 2023: Stone Lagoon, Humboldt County by John Cowan

My better half's family has a cabin at the Elk Country RV Park north of Patrick's Point (where the little red schoolhouse is). Stone Lagoon is right across the street. I've observed others fishing in that lagoon, so I have been interested for some time in giving it a try. I was hoping to catch a coastal cutthroat trout, since this is the type of environment it resides.

The fog was thick and drippy, not a breath of wind. The only movement on the surface the lagoon were the waves that I was making. True to my current form, I did not catch a fish, but I thought about how wonderful it was to have this serene place to myself. I don't think I would have had a better time even if I had caught fish. Don Sleeper, being a Humboldt State grad, mentioned that he fished those lagoons frequently and were always a "tough fishery". Because the cabin is a place we like to go to, I'll fish there, again, along with the surf. Fish may or may not be part of the fun.

Fly of the Month

"How to Tie a Fly" By Ray Narbaitz

8/8/23...For the better part of 15 years now, CAF members have been subjected to my haranguing them on how to tie flies. Some 11 years ago I decided to bring in another voice, and I think it is time to do so again. Back in 2011, Jack Ohman was based in Oregon. He then moved to the Sacramento Bee and is a Pulitzer Prize winning political cartoonist. Here then are his instructions on tying an Adams. There is a little something for everyone in there. Originally published in the June 2012 Newsletter.

I know we sometimes get very busy during the summer and our time at the tying bench is reduced as we turn to other pursuits, like fishing. However, it is my hope that you don't get too far away, as fly tying is a hobby, like your golf swing, that requires that you keep up to a certain degree. If you don't tie for the summer, you will find that when you sit down at the vise to whip out a half dozen or so of that fly you will need as we head into fall, it is going to take you much longer than you hoped, and the fly will probably not really be what you had in mind. This is my 40th edition of the Fly of the Month, and for the past 39 you have observed me pontificate on how I tie a fly, and why. I appreciate the fact that your patience has been exemplary. With that thought in mind, instead of listing a specific fly, I thought I would turn to another person to give you some tips to consider (or not) as you sit down to tie your favorite fly.

Jack Ohman is an award winning, syndicated political cartoonist in Oregon. He is also a fly fisherman, a fly tier and an author. His books include, "Angler Management," "An Inconvenient Trout," and "Fear of Fly Fishing." You can learn all about these books by going to www.headwaterbooks.com. Thanks to the good people at Head Water Books, we are able to reprint Mr. Ohman's advice from his book "Angler Management" as this month's Fly of the Month.

How to Tie a Fly

By: Jack Ohman illustrations
by: Jack Ohman

I have read a lot of fly-tying instruction books, and some of them are pretty good. But I have not as yet seen a fly-tying book that honestly breaks the process down, step-by-step, and shows you—honestly—how to do it in a way that truly reflects what you need to know. So, I provide here a basic, building-blocks guide to tying a fly.

1. Select a hook. I like to tie small flies, so I like to use a hook that I can't really see, like a 20.
2. Drop the hook into the carpet and hope you don't step on it.
3. Get another hook.
4. Put the hook in the vise. Make sure you prick your thumb when inserting the hook into the jaws; otherwise you won't have enough blood to hold the fly together.
5. Carefully wrap size 8/0 black thread around the hook shank. Take care to overwrap the hook shank so that the profile of the fly is way too fat.
6. Examine your materials and organize them carefully.
7. Sneeze.
8. Reexamine materials and reorganize them carefully. Let's try a simple pattern, like an Adams.
9. Take the tail materials (I can't remember what they are, and I can't find my tying guide, anyway). Brown hackle barbs, I think.
10. Take the brown hackle barbs off the hackle and wrap the thread around the bend of the hook.
11. They should be sticking out .00000009 microns.
12. Switch reading glasses, again.
13. Switch reading glasses, again.
14. Switch reading glasses, again.
15. That's better.
16. Okay, get the dubbing material and rub wax all over the thread. Too much wax will make the fly body even fatter, so just screw the wax.
17. Carefully spin the gray dubbing material around the thread until it gets too twisty and the bobbin spins wildly. Six thousand rpms should work.
18. Now wrap the dubbing material around the hook shank, all the way up to the hook eye. The rear part of the fly will be fatter, even if you don't want it to be. Try squashing that fatter part down between your bleeding thumb and index finger. Good luck.
19. More blood.
20. Good.
21. Now, for the fun part. You need to tie in the wings and wrap the hackle. Clip the wings from the ends of two too-large grizzly hackle feathers.
22. Tie on the wings.

23. No, this way.
24. For the love of Pete (Wiik). Please.
25. They have to be like this.
26. No, they need to be at a 45-degree angle and uprightish. Like this.
27. NO, DUMBASS. LIKE THAT.
28. Close enough.
29. Okay, now tie in your hackle. It should be grizzly and brown.
30. Get out your hackle guide to make sure that, again, they are simply too long. You will need to have the profile of the fly way too fluffy to be natural, so be careful. You can lightly trim them later in the process to assure maximum unnaturalness.
31. Now wrap the hackle around and through the wings.
32. Okay, now you have mashed the wings in a completely weird and useless position. Take your bloody thumb and forefinger and readjust them.
33. Oops. You don't need that second wing, anyway. Don't even bother to get on the floor to find it. Keep wrapping.
34. Now tie off the hackle, making sure that you can't tie off the head without having those little points sticking out.
35. Wrap even more thread around the head of the fly. MORE. MORE THREAD.
36. Now you can't see the points at all, but the head now looks like The World's Largest Ball of String Roadside Attraction in Fromage, Wisconsin.
37. Whatever.
38. Now, do a whip finish. Take your whip finisher and get the little wire thing over the thread, rotate it, hold it up perpendicular to the shank of the hook, turn it again, rotate, twist, twist again, drop, loop, hook, and then GENTLY break the thread.
39. Good. Now, as fast as you can before the fly unravels (usually instantaneously, but sometimes you get a break and it will hold for ten seconds, just before you can get the new thread on), tie on even more thread.
40. Forget the whip finisher. Use the hollow thingee needle device.
41. FASTER.
42. Okay, now open the bottle of head cement and inhale.
43. Kidding.
44. Get the needle and dip it in the bottle.
45. Put one to eight drops of head cement on the head of the fly.
46. Compulsively stick the dubbing needle into the hook eye so it doesn't get filled in with cement. No matter how many times you do this, it will magically in-fill when you take the fly to the stream and attempt to put your tippet material through.
47. Now trim the thread.
48. You must have accidentally cut the thread, again.
49. Never mind.
50. Go to fly shop and buy a dozen Adams.
